

The present invention relates to the situation where URL information is executed with the purpose of accessing a given document on the Internet. The URL information is 5 automatically used to generate a search-engine database query as well as the execution of the URL request.